Armenian Cucumbers

Armenian cucumbers are annual plants that sometimes reach up to three meters in length. They have round leaves of three to five lobes and an erect stem.

Lemon cucumbers

Lemon cucumbers are crunchy and have a sweet taste. They are very similar to lemons in shape and for this reason they are known as lemon cucumbers. Lemon cucumbers are sweet and they lack the bitter part found in most cucumbers. This type of cucumber has a thin skin and soft and flavorful seeds. They are very tasty and can be used in salad.

English cucumbers

English cucumbers or seedless cucumbers can grow up to 60cm in length. Their skin is thin and dark green. English cucumbers are often known as "skinless" cucumbers and grow best in greenhouses; For this reason, they are generally a little more expensive than other types of cucumbers.

Japanese cucumbers

These cucumbers are very thin and have a thin skin with small dark green bumps. They also have very small seeds and a sweet and crunchy taste. This plant has a vertical growth and belongs to the melon and squash family and gives a unique taste to all kinds of salads and pickles. Some of them reach up to 60cm in length and 8 cm in width.

Pickle Cucumbers

Pickle cucumbers are usually only 7 to 10 cm long and are shorter than other types of cucumbers and have a thin, prickly skin. Their colors vary from dark green to light green. They can be harvest at any time during the year and be used for all kinds of recipes.

Garden cucumbers

Garden cucumbers are taller than the pickle ones and are about 20cm long. They have a much thicker skin and a dark green color. Garden cucumbers are the most common type in North America. These cucumbers have large seeds, and special garden instructions are used to grow them. However, once the seeds are removed, they are suitable for any diet.

Kirby Cucumbers

Kirby cucumbers are of the most popular types of commercial cucumbers. They have a thin skin and a very crunchy and delicious taste. Kirby cucumbers are hard and they are very suitable for pickling. Their length is usually about 13 or 15cm. These crunchy and delicious cucumbers have a rough skin and are an ideal choice for use in salad.
